LOIS BABCOCK INSTALLED AS MESSIAH SHRINE HEAD

ROMILL, THE DESERT FOX
By Sir Desmond Young.

Of all the German commanders in World War II none gripped the imagination of both British and Americans as Erwin Rommel. The censorship necessary and the Nazi faking of his biography have always obscured the facts concerning the man and the general. Presented here by the general whose prisoner he was for some time is the first full length portrait of German leader and capable warrior.

OUT OF THIS WORLD:
ACROSS THE HIMALAYAS TO FORBIDDEN TIBET by Lowell
Thomas Jr.

This is a charming and exciting travel book. The familiar commentator and his son were among the very few to penetrate the mountain kingdom and they have given us the most vivid presentation of Tibet that the Western world has had. Told in a pleasant manner the reader is given all the information that will help him understand what went on in that fabulous land, now so important in the news of today.

BREATH OF AIR by Rumor
Godden.

Everyone has his own enchanted island, a coral island, a desert island, an island of the mind. In her new novel Rumor Godden uses her own special magic to bring this universal dream to life with the story of a South Pacific paradise, a lovely girl who has never seen a white man except her father and the handsome stranger from the skies whose coming brings surprising changes to everybody's life. This is a romantic novel, witty, gay, and a delight.

*RANDALL & THE RIVER
OF TIME by C. S. Forester.

C. S. Forester is known to a large and admiring audience as a historical novelist who created Captain Hornblower, the doughty naval officer in the Napoleonic period. However, like any good artist he cannot be confined to one subject. Not adventure but humanity is his interest and in his most recent work he has created a new hero, a young man of our own times, Charles Randall. A captain at 19 in World War I, and on leave from France, he meets and later marries Muriel, a modern Becky Sharp. She is a certain feminine type that comes to fine flower in war times. The picture of the tragedy and se-quencing that follows proves again the author's great ability as a novelist.

OWEN GLENN by Ben Ames
Williams.

Owen Glenn is a novel of a growing up; the growing up of a boy into manhood, the emergence of a labor leader from back alleys to public importance; the development of a nation amid economic distress and world wars. However, it is Hardison Owen's town, that takes the center of the stage and symbolizes for us humanity's painful struggle to emerge from its own pits of greed and war to achieve its vision.

SON OF A HUNDRED KINGS
by Thomas B. Costain.

One day in 1890 an English boy, shy and appealing, stepped off the boat at Halifax.
Sewed to the back of his coat was an oilcloth sign "This is Ludwig. Press me. I have no money, he is going to his father at Balfour, Ontario. Be kind to him." Son of a Hundred Kings is about the boy with the sign and the men and women for and against him as man and boy, he makes his handicapped way in the new world. A warm and moving story with many fascinating characters, love interest, and plenty of plot.

Modification of State Law
To Relieve Nursing Shortage

Emergency legislation amending the Nursing Practice Act to provide temporary permits for out-of-state registered nurses has been introduced at Sacramento, under the leadership of the California State Nurses' Association, Mrs. Margaret Feuille, president of the San Pedro Nurses' Association, announced.

The amendment, sponsored by the California State Nurses' Association, has been under consideration since the Special Session, last September, as a means to relieve the current nursing shortage and the anticipated growing shortage as the national emergency crisis develops.

"Passage of the emergency bill," Mrs. Feuille explained, "will make immediately available several hundred out-of-state registered nurses who, because of marginal deficiencies in their nursing preparation
